KPOP

K-pop music has been a part of my life for as long as I can remember. From my first cassette tape of Roo'ra's (룰라) 4th Album in 1996, to the latest New Jeans album, K-pop music has been a constant food for my ears. As someone who was born in Korea but moved away from my family to North America at a young age, I always admired how it reminded me of home. Whenever I put my headphones on and listen to my favorite K-pop albums, I feel the comfort of home no matter where I am.

Broadway musicals became my passion when I was in a school production of Once Upon A Mattress back when I was in 6th grade. The way that music is used as a vessel for characters to pour out their emotions and stories gave me a sense of freedom - a freedom that I felt so privileged to experience playing a character in the show. But I never could imagine that I could take part in creating a musical that provides that freedom, from my own heart, and from my emotions, from my melodies, harmonies, and beats thumping from within. After all, there hadn't been anyone that looked like me who composed music for Broadway.

Good K-pop and musical theater songs have similar qualities, one of which is how catchy and hummable the melody is. Another is how they're often times high drama with heightened emotion, whether it be of joy, exhilaration, pain or sorrow.

When the opportunity came to me 8 years ago to marry the two genres and write music for a brand new musical called KPOP, it felt like destiny. My two passions coming into one - something that I never dared to imagine as a possibility.

Together, Jason, Teddy, Max, Jenn and I designed KPOP to give the audience the illusion of being in an actual K-pop label, for them to witness backstage drama and experience the story like watching a music video. This required the songs to be structured less in the traditional musical theater realm but more true to the genre of K-pop. What resulted was a collection of K-pop songs with a Broadway flair, with mostly subtextual and thematic storytelling. Because of this, all of the songs in our show stand very well on their own, and still have the effect that any pop song has.

This desire for these songs to feel authentic revealed to us the importance of keeping the lyrics bilingual. Often times, the lyrics contain double meaning - for example, in Blast Off, the lyric "갈망" means yearning, but it also sounds like the English phrase "come on," which creates this message of yearning with hopeful energy. The way they're sung creates a visceral experience that also helps communicate the intent, regardless of the language.

To be able to share a piece of my home with the Broadway stage has been a dream come true. And a gift I'll never take for granted is being able to leave a permanent imprint for the world to listen to, featuring voices I've only imagined in my wildest dreams.

I invite you to 흔들어 (Shake it) to the sound of our 슈퍼스타 (Superstar)s - F8, RTMIS, and MwE.

-HELEN PARK

Every day without you
Feels like a dark night
Whenever my tears
Come up in my chest
I feel you with my whole body
I told you I love you
In front of you, until the end
Begging you to stay
But you're already gone
And in love with someone else
You might be leaving
I know you're going far away

MwE You push the gear / Touch me that way
You wind me up like clockwork / And I obey
Gonna be your toy / If you wanna play
So pick me off the shelf and / Take me away

Up and then I'll do it gladly / For you
I only come to life when you're near / One look into your eye sends my gear / Spinning in a circle like a Cuckoo / Watch me light up

Look at my shining eyes
반짝이는 이 눈빛을 봐
I'm a wind up, your wind up doll / Yours for life 'cause

Wind me up again and again
자꾸 자꾸만 감아줘
Wind up doll, gonna be your wind up doll

BRAD I travel all around the globe / From Seoul to Rome to Tokyo
Of all the cities I've been through / I need your love to come home to
I could run a thousand miles / Just to see that warm smile
There's only one kind of you, babe
I don't know how to describe it, But I'm lost
When I hold you, you turn to dust / So close yet unreachable
When all I want is to feel your touch / But I'm only halfway halfway
Can you meet me halfway, baby?
The more I hold you close you drift away
And when I turn around you make me stay
I'm always halfway, halfway / Someone tell me what should I say
What can I do to find my place / Be at home in your embrace
So meet me halfway / Meet me halfway
Every time I look in the mirror / My whole world fades to a blur
Did you ever love me at all / Will I ever know who to call
Or will I fall?
When I hold you, you turn to dust / So close yet unreachable
When all I want is to hold you tight / But I'm always halfway halfway
Can you meet me halfway, baby?
The more I hold you close you drift away
And when I turn around you make me stay

Can we meet halfway, halfway?
What's it gonna take me, baby?
What can I do to find my place
Be at home in your embrace
So meet me halfway
Meet me halfway

벙어리새 BUNG UH REE SAE (MUTE BIRD)

Don't say anything
MwE 아무런 말도 하지마
I know what you're going to say
무슨 말 할지 다 알아
We've been drifting apart for a long time
멀어지는 우리 사이는 오랜 얘기
I try my best to smile
애써 웃으려 하는데
But the tears that run down my face
볼에 내리는 눈물이
Feel like they're stabbing me in the chest
아픈 가슴에 못 박는것만 같아
Never knew it'd be so hard / Never knew I'd be broken apart / I gave you my all / You made me feel small / Got off from watching me fall / You said without you I'd drown / But you're the one who held me down / You laughed when I cried / Abandoned me in the night / Every promise was a lie
난 벙어리새
하고픈 말은 많은데
벙어리처럼 입술이
떨어지지 않고 가만히 다문 채로
어떻게 너는 그렇게
아무렇지 않은 듯이
농담 섞인 말로 인사를 건네는지
Never knew it'd be so hard / Never knew I'd be broken apart / I gave you my all / You made me feel small / Got off from watching me fall / You said without you I'd drown / But you're the one who held me down / You laughed when I cried / Abandoned me in the night / Every promise was a lie
난 벙어리새
난 벙어리새
난 벙어리새
아플수록 더 그리워져
따가울수록 그리워져
차가울수록 더 좋아져

I gave you my all / You made me feel small / Got off from watching me fall / You said without you I'd drown / But you're the one who held me down / You laughed when I cried / Abandoned me in the night / Every promise was a lie
